Issues

- GIs at international level and in the EU
- Why are GIs important to the EU?
- The territoriality principle
- GIs and international agreements

GIs at international level and in the EU

Legal framework for GIs

- WTO: TRIPS agreement as framework - Articles 22-24 (no register, legal basis for bilateral agreements)
- WIPO: Geneva Act of the Lisbon agreement (multilateral register)
- EU: Four sets of rules for food, wine, spirit drinks + craft and industrial goods (EU register). Exclusive EU systems as regards these sectors
  - Agricultural products and foodstuffs, wines and spirits - Regulation (EU) No 2024/1143
  - Craft and industrial goods - Regulation (EU) 2023/2411

WIPO WORLD INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY ORGANIZATION

EU Quality Designations

1. Defined geographical area + 2. Specific product with ‘qualities’ + 3. Link between 1. and 2. = PDO PGI GI

- PDO
  Protected Designation of Origin
  (food & wine)

- PGI
  Protected Geographical Indication
  (food & wine)

- GI
  Geographical Indication
  (spirits & aromatised wines)

Protection of PDO/PGI in the EU

- Valuable intellectual property right (collective right)
- Protection of the name not of the product
- Against any misuse, imitation or evocation and any other practice liable to mislead the consumer
- Right to use: applies to any operator within the geographical area respecting product specification
- Protection unlimited in time (but possibility of cancellation if compliance with the product specification is no longer ensured)

Why are GIs important to the EU?

EU GIs: what is in it for producers?

- The GI name is reserved to products respecting the specification
- Production is kept in the geographical area, protecting local value at global level
- The GI name is not reserved to one single producer, but can be used by all producers in the production area respecting the specification (collective IP right)

- Administrative protection by Member State public authorities for EU wide protection
- Differentiation on the market allows often a better price
- Organisation of farmers in producer groups provides the opportunity for stronger position in the agri-food supply chain and better distribution of value added

EU GIs: what is in it for producers?

- Value premium!

  «This study confirms a significant positive effect of GIs on price, regardless of the type of product, the region of origin, and whether the GI is long-established or recently registered. … In most cases, the premium is between 20 and 50 percent.»

  Strengthening sustainable food systems through geographical indications. An analysis of economic impacts – FAO / EBRD, 2018

- EU GIs economic figures:

  - Estimated total sales value of EU GIs: € 75 billion in 2017 (estimated at wholesale stage in the region of production)

    = 6.8% of the total EU food and drink sector

  - Estimate of EU GI exports value to non-EU countries: € 17 billion in 2017

    = 15% of EU food and drink exports; wines & spirits: 89% of total GI exports (in value)

  - Sales destinations:

    = 58% of sales take place on the national MS market, 20% on the EU market and 22% in third countries

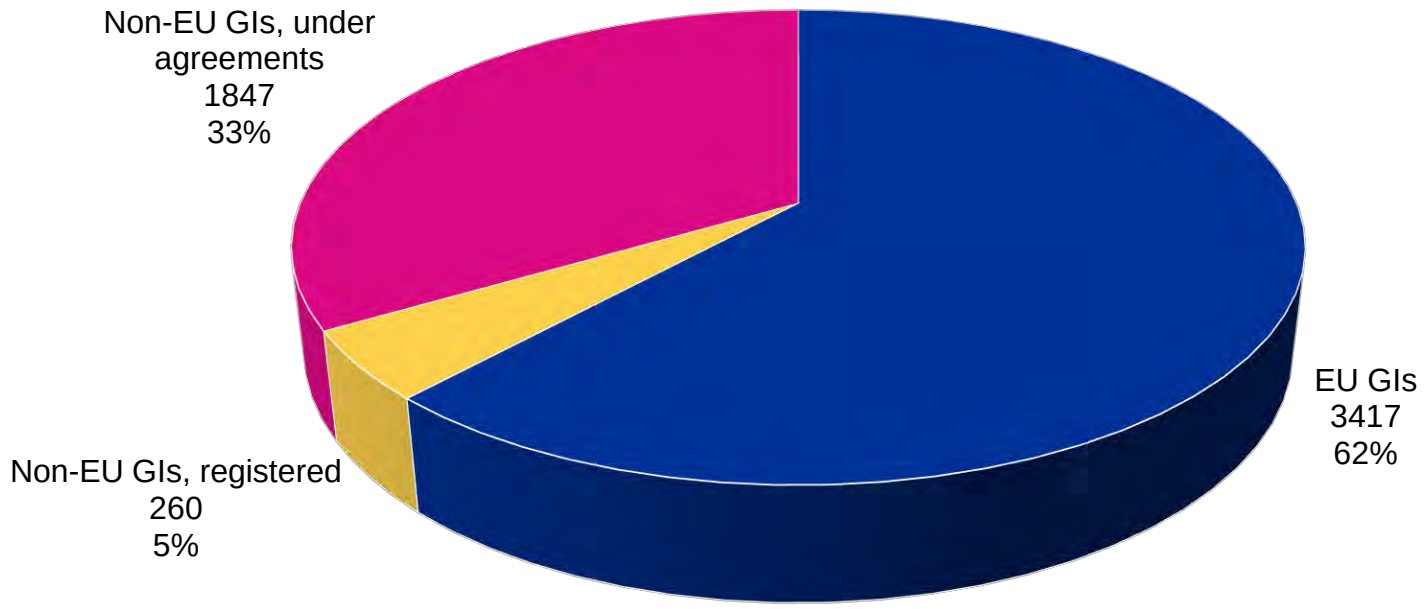
EU GIs: what is in it for consumers?

- The EU GI system provides guarantees on the:
  - ✓ Origin of the product
  - ✓ Quality of the product (specification)
  - ✓ Authenticity of the product (protects product names from imitation)
- It reinforces consumer information on the unique character of these products
- It preserves centuries of tradition, cultural heritage and know-how.
- It is ensured by controls on production site and on the market
- It prevents the standardization of products and allows to offer a wider choice to consumers

Geographical indications protected in the EU



Source: GI View, 15 September 2025. Whole-of-Ireland GIs are counted only as EU GIs.

GIs and the terriotoriality principle

Territoriality

- It is a widely accepted and fundamental concept - an IPR (including GIs) is “territorial in nature”, limited to the territory of the State granting it (exclusive right) and not protected by one uniform right applying worldwide
- UN members: 193 → territorial (national/regional) rights around the globe; those rights are independent from each other → an IPR may be protected in one country but unprotected in another
- The “territoriality principle” has long been accepted by the EU and its Member States, Switzerland, common-law countries (UK, Australia..), Japan and the US, etc.
- A given GI may be considered as such and be protected in one country, whereas in another country the same GI may be considered as a generic term for the kind of product it is used

Terminology

- Generic terms (GT): when the term does not convey its original meaning anymore/it has lost its distinctiveness, such as cheddar (originally a village in Somerset, UK) or brie (French region, today département of Seine-et-Marne) → type of product/ GT cannot be registered as GIs, but can be part of a GI: "Brie de Meaux" or "West Country farmhouse Cheddar cheese"
- Descriptive terms: "blue cheese" or "goat cheese"
- Common/customary terms used on the market: "apple", "ham", etc.

Generic terms

- There are no “universal generic terms”. Evidence of generic status in one territory is not a ground for generic status in another. By the same token, there no « universal GIs ».
- TRIPS Article 24.6 provides that any WTO Member may decide not to protect a GI for which the relevant indication has become “customary in the territory of that Member.” So, refusal to register a generic as GIs is a choice every WTO member has.
- How do we identify a generic term?
  - EU court test: the name of the product has, in the eyes of the consumer, lost its connotation with the original place of origin (and became a ‘common name’). Court said ‘all factors’ should be taken into account in assessing if a term is a common name, including views of consumers and producers.

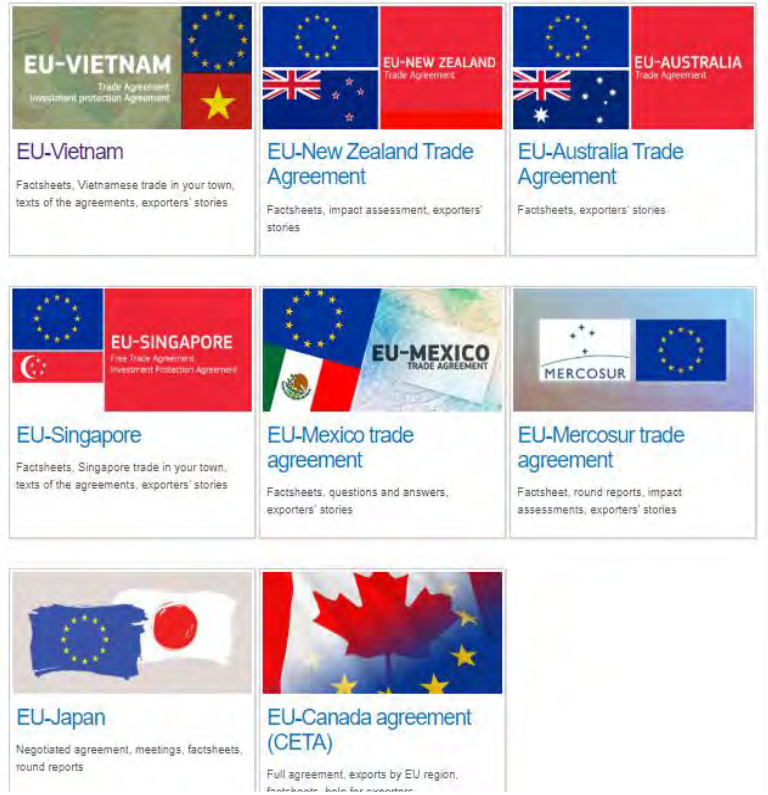
GIs and international agreements

International agreements

Art. 24 TRIPS: Members may enter into negotiations to increase protection of individual GIs

The scope of protection of a given GI can be extended through international agreement (bilateral or multilateral) → FTA, sectorial agreement (W&S), Lisbon system/Geneva Act (WIPO)



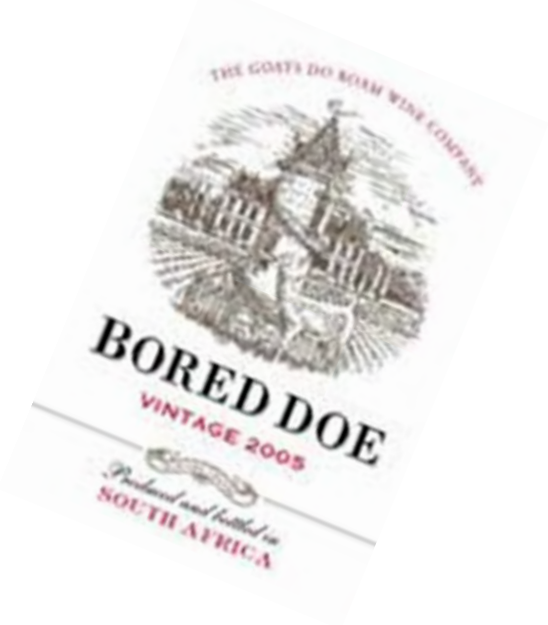
International Agreements

The TRIPS Agreement:

- ✓ Provides for an international definition of GIs
- ✓ All products are covered (basic level of protection)
- ✓ Wines and spirits are covered with higher level of protection i.e. use prevented even if consumers not mislead about origin
- ✓ Non-agricultural GI's are also protected

Why additional protection is needed?

- ❖ Against any misuse, imitation or evocation
- ❖ Against use of expression "like" "style" "type"…



Protection of EU GIs in third countries

- In Bilateral Agreements (FTAs, wines & spirits or only GIs) the EU aims at:
  - "High level" of Protection of GIs beyond TRIPS
  - Reciprocal protection (GIs protected directly and indefinitely)
  - Co-existence of GIs with prior TM registered in good faith
  - Ensuring administrative enforcement
- Currently there are:
  - 40 agreements in force or concluded with GI chapters (e.g. Vietnam, Indonesia, China, Japan, South Korea, Singapore, Mercosur, Mexico, Canada, New Zealand, Australia)
  - 10 negotiations ongoing (e.g. Malaysia, Thailand, Philippines, UAE, India etc)
- Over 1800 third country GIs currently protected in the EU via agreements

27/02/2025 – Bilateral agreements covering GIs (under negotiation, concluded and in force) between the EU and its trade partners

ADVOCACY/ORIGIN ALERTS

Over the years, the EU has negotiated with several trade partners a number of bilateral agreements (GIs Agreements, Free Trade Agreement with a GI chapter, Cooperation Agreement with implications for GIs, etc...) for the recognition of European GIs in key export markets (such agreements also provide for the recognition of third countries' GIs in the EU). Where do we stand today with such agreements? We have come up with a summary, including agreements concluded but not ratified as we as those under negotiations.

Agreements in force (ratified or provisionally applied)

Completed negotiations (but agreements not yet in force)

Agreements under negotiation

EU – Canada
Agreement between the European Community and Canada on trade in wines and spirit drinks (2003). See GI relevant rules: Title III and IV, page 3 and the GI Lists: Annex III (Wines), page 20 and Annex IV (Spirits), page 49. The Agreement is in force since 01 June 2004.
UE – Chile
Agreement establishing an association between the European Community and its Member States, of the one part, and the Republic of Chile, of the other part (2002). See GI relevant rules: Agreement on trade in wines, Annex V, page 1083 and the GI List: Appendix 1, page 1092. See GI relevant rules: Agreement on trade in spirit drinks and aromatised drinks, Annex VI, page 1198 and the GI List: Appendix 1, page 1204. The Agreement is in force since 01 February 2003. The modernised agreements on wine and spirits between entered into for on 9 March 2023: Appendix I page 21- Agreement in the form of an Exchange of Letters between the European Union and the Republic of Chile concerning amendments to Appendices I, II, V and VIII to the Agreement on Trade in Wines (Annex V), annexed to the Association Agreement between the European Community and its Member States, of the one part, and the Republic of Chile, of the other part Appendix I - Agreement in the form of an Exchange of Letters between the European Union and the Republic of Chile concerning amendments to Appendix I to the Agreement on Trade in Spirit Drinks and Aromatised Drinks (Annex VI, page 8), annexed to the Association Agreement between the European Community and its Member States, of the one part, and the Republic of Chile, of the other part
EU- EFTA States (Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway)
Agreement on the European Economic Area (EEA). It provides for mutual recognition of GIs for wines and spirits

MODERNISATION OF THE GLOBAL AGREEMENT	Mexico[3]	- The EU and Mexico met in June 2016 to start the negotiation process for the modernisation of the EU-Mexico Global Agreement. - On 17 January 2025, the EU and Mexico concluded the negotiations	- The updated text of the agreement is not yet published, the provisional text is available here.	Subject to final legal revision, the EU and Mexico will have to proceed with their respective procedures for conclusion and ratification.	- You will find the provisional list of protected GIs here page 26. - The modernization will allow for 568 GIs to be protected under the agreement
STAND-ALONE GI AGREEMENT	Morocco[4]	- On 16 January 2015, the European Union and Morocco have concluded the negotiations. - The agreement has been submitted to the European Parliament and the Council for ratification. - The ratification process was put on hold because of the legal uncertainty arising from the fact that Western Sahara is covered by the agreement.	- Morocco and the EU will ensure high level protection for their respective GIs for food products	The ratification process still need to be started.	- According to this agreement, the EU will protect 30 Moroccan GIs. Morocco will protect all the existing EU GIs; - The agreement provides for coexistence between pre-existing TMs and GIs.

Agreement type	Country	General overview		Aspects related to GIs
		Launching of negotiations	Key issues	GIs issues
FREE TRADE AGREEMENT + AGREEMENT ON GIs	India[6]	- Negotiations for an ambitious and broad-based FTA were launched in June 2007 but stopped in 2013. - At the EU-India Summit of 30 March 2016, President Juncker took a clear stance in favour of tangible progress in the negotiations provided there is movement on the outstanding issues. - Chief Negotiators met in October 2017. They are now assessing which chapters are problematic to see if the negotiations can proceed. - In June 2022, the EU relaunched negotiations with India for an FTA and an Agreement on GIs. - The report of the 9th round of negotiations which took place in September 2024 for the FTA is available here. - The report of the 6nd round of negotiation for the GI agreement is available here.	The main focus of negotiations included: market access for goods, services, public procurement and sustainable development. A standalone GI agreement cannot be each without reaching in parallel a FTA agreement	- The EU seeks protection of a list of EU GIs through the specific agreement on GIs. India seeks protection for its long list of non-agricultural GIs. - A list of GIs was exchanged in spring 2024.

Italy Joins the Geneva Act of the Lisbon Agreement

On July 14, 2026, the Government of Italy deposited its instrument of ratification to the Geneva Act of the Lisbon Agreement on Appellations of Origin and Geographical Indications ("Geneva Act").

With this ratification, the Geneva Act now offers protection in 28 Contracting Parties covering up to 61 countries, while the Lisbon System covers up to 73 countries in total.

This ratification will allow Italy to protect both its appellations of origin and geographical indications under the Geneva Act, including those in the non-agricultural product category, such as the renowned VETRO DI MURANO (Murano glass) or MERLETTO DI BURANO (Burano lace), but also its renowned appellations of origin and geographical indications in the agricultural and food product categories, such as ASIAGO (cheese), GRANA PADANO (cheese) or PROSCIUTTO DI PALMA (ham), and those in the wine and spirits categories, such as PROSECCO (sparkling wine), CHIANTI (wine), GRAPPA (spirit), or LIQUORE DI LIMONE DI SORRENTO (spirit), to name only a few.

The Geneva Act will enter into force with respect to Italy on October 14, 2026.

Importanza dell'Atto di Ginevra

i. Registro plurilaterale (potenzialmente globale) per tutte le IG

ii. Una singola domanda di registrazione

iii. Solido livello di protezione

iv. Rapporto con i marchi precedenti

v. Nomi protetti non possono diventare generici finché protetti nel Paese di origine

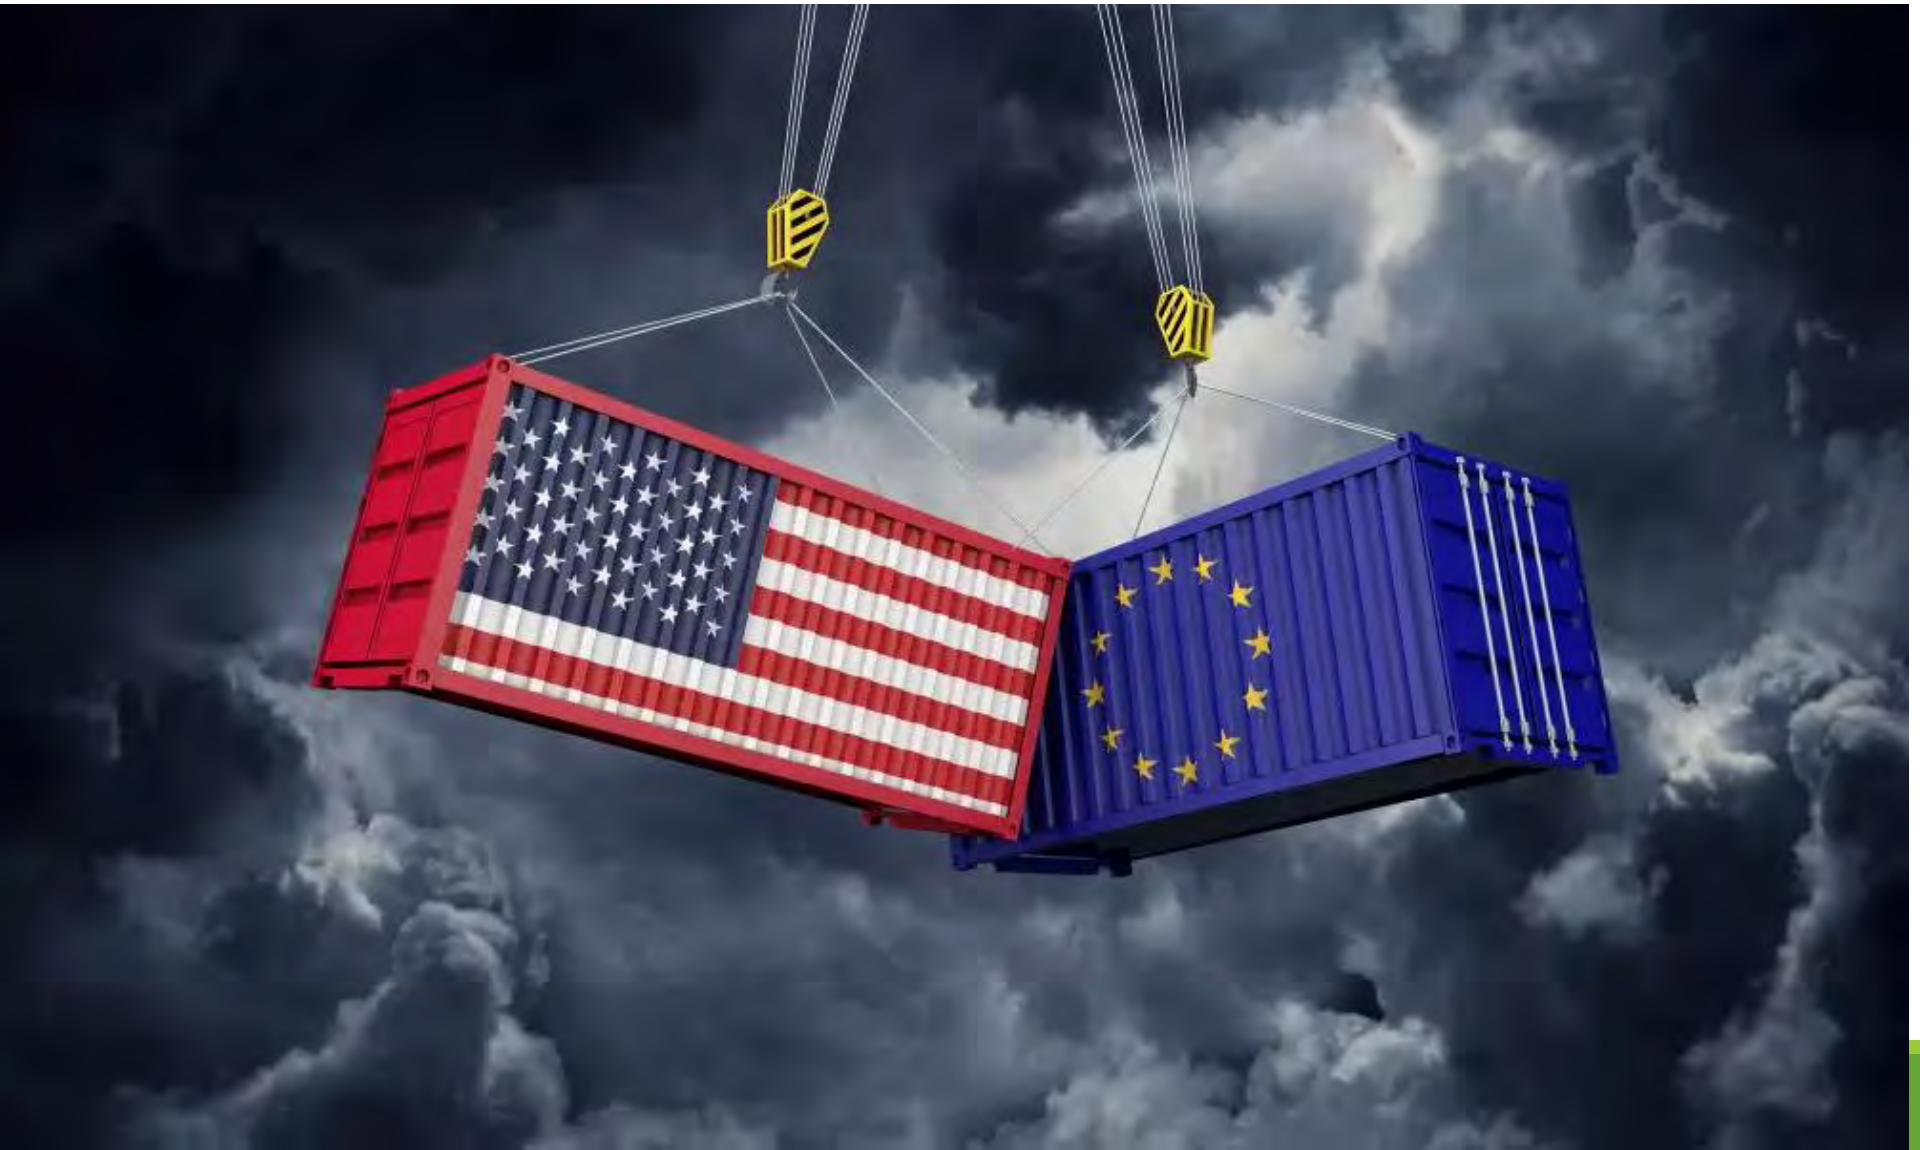
Diritto v. visone «muscolare» delle relazioni internazionali



Iniziative WIPO in materia di «common names»

i. Simposio biennale sulle IG

ii. Seminario di Manila di fine ottobre

iii. Attenzione alle norme nazionali relative alla possibilità di «cancellare» la registrazione di una IG già protetta in un Paese

iv. Preoccupazione di oriGIn e dei suoi membri

Perché il sistema di Lisbona è importante per i salumi italiani tutelati

i. Rafforza la protezione nei mercati dove l'UE ha già raggiunto un accordo

ii. Facilita la protezione in mercati dove l'UE non ha ancora raggiunto un accordo

iii. Scudo contro la genericità

iv. Continuità di protezione nei Paesi già membri dell'Accordo di Lisbona, che aderiscono all'Atto di Ginevra

LEGAL INFO INTERNATIONAL NEGOTIATIONS, POLICY AND ADVOCACY

From 2008 to 2015, oriGIn successfully campaigned for the revision of the WIPO Lisbon Agreement on the Protection of Appellations of Origin and their International Registration, in particular for its modernization and the strengthening of protection for Geographical Indications and Appellations of Origin. Following its entry into force on 26 February 2020, oriGIn encourages all WIPO Member States to ratify the Geneva Act of the Lisbon Agreement on Appellations of Origin and Geographical Indications (as adopted on May 20, 2015).

Likewise, oriGIn follows regularly the WIPO Standing Committee on the Law of Trademarks, Industrial Designs and Geographical Indications (SCT), and campaigns for the full protection of GIs in the context of the Internet domain names environment. On this topic, see also the session Internet Domain Names Environment
